

My Questions Worksheet

After a brain injury, it is important that you get the information you need to understand what happened. The more facts you know, the less you have to make up in your mind.

You may like to ask questions such as:

- What happened?
- What parts of the brain have been hurt?

- What tests have happened? What do the tests show?
- What changes might I notice in my special person?
- How bad is the brain injury?
- Will my special person need an operation?
- Will my special person need to stay in hospital for a while?

What else would you like to know about your special person's brain injury?
